Anchored Leadership Readiness Pathway: Volunteer Track

Forming servant-hearted, reliable leaders who lead from identity, not insecurity

Overview

The Anchored Leadership Readiness Pathway helps emerging and volunteer leaders grow from faithfulness in serving to confidence in leading. This six-part formation journey builds identity, reliability, and relational maturity as foundations for trustworthy influence. It prepares leaders who serve from being, not striving—anchored in presence, purpose, and partnership.

Focus Areas: The Arcs of Volunteer Leadership

Volunteer readiness develops through two interconnected arcs that shape both the heart and practice of leadership:

- Internal Arc — forms the heart of the leader through identity, reliability, and relational wholeness.
- External Arc — guides the process from discipleship to serving, supporting, and leading others.

As the inner life deepens, outward influence matures—faithful leaders become life-giving leaders.

What You'll Experience

- Discover your unique calling and capacity for leadership.
- Build confidence rooted in identity, not performance.
